CENTENNIAL ALMANAC FOR 1888.

SATURN IS THE RULING PLANET THIS YEAR.

THE YEAR IN GENERAL.—Will be mostly cold and damp, even if it should be very dry at certain times; it will, however, generally be considered a cold, wet, unpleasant year.

SPRING.—The beginning of April will be somewhat warm yet very unpleasant till in May; afterwards if the days are pleasant and the nights cool, a severe drought will follow; notwithstanding there will be some rainy weather. Grass and vegetables will start late.

SUMMER.—In the beginning it will be wet; followed by great heat and drought, so that summer crops will suffer. Very destructive storms of thunder, lightning, and hail will visit different sections.

AUTUMN.—Will be cold and damp; early freezing, followed by heavy thunderstorms. After the middle of October, cold weather will set in. December will be damp, but somewhat pleasant.

WINTER.—Will continue till near April. In the beginning it will be damp with heavy rains. Towards the end of December winter will set in, with deep snow and cold, and continue long; hence the necessity of preparing firewood and feed.

SPRING CROPS.—As the spring will be cold and unpleasant, and as there will be no continuous warm weather until June, the spring crops should not be planted early. Barley will do well; much will depend on the gathering. Grass in general will be good, though but little second crop.

WINTER GRAIN will succeed well; waste no good weather in gathering, else the grain will grow and spoil.

FALL SEEDING.—Wheat and rye should be sown early, for it will grow slowly, even if it rain much.

FRUIT will fail on account of the cold, unpleasant spring.

HOPS will not be plentiful, yet they will be good.

WINE.—The vintage will be light, in general it will fall off, mostly in the blossom. Whether much or little, the wine will be of poor quality. The fruit should be gathered early, but the vines should not be covered early; even if it freezes early in November, it will open again and not close up until in December. If the vines are covered up too soon they will be injured by the wet ground.

WIND AND STORMS.—There will be some very severe storms, with thunder and lightning.

INSECTS.—Snakes and toads will be abundant, and in winter, mice numerous. There will not be so many worms in the grain as in other years, and they will be destroyed by the severe cold in winter.

DISEASES.—The latter part of summer, and also in the fall, many dangerous and fatal diseases will prevail, such as fatal fevers, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Catarrh, Gout, Tetters, Palsy, Vertigo, Fever, Jaundice, and such like diseases; caused mostly by cold feet.

THE FAMILY ALMANAC.

WE need not tell you that every family wants an Almanac. This has been decided long ago, as there is no one thing so universally found in all families of civilized nations, as the Almanac. Even the Bible, the best of all books, cannot be excepted. This being true, its character cannot help but have some kind of an influence over those who peruse its pages—the father and the mother and the big children and the little ones all are familiar with almost every line in. Therefore the best should be prepared and introduced into our homes. In preparing matter for the Brethren's Almanac we have kept this fact in view, and believe that the present number is made up of reading matter that cannot fail in exerting a healthy Christian influence to the families into which it may enter.

To the Ministerial List we have given unusual care, and we believe we have made it as reliable as it was possible to do under existing circumstances. There will no doubt be some mistakes and some names omitted that should be in. But these omissions will have to be laid to the charge of those whose names are omitted, as timely notice was given and every name inserted that was sent to us.

To our patrons we extend thanks for past patronage and hope that this our Almanac for the year 1888 will be quite as good and interesting as its predecessors. And as our Heavenly Father has blessed us in the past, may we continue to be the recipients of His love and favors during the present year.

THE MOTHER.

Oh! if there be linked with the gloom of existence
One feeling, that deepens the darkness it wears,
'Tis a fond mother's fear, that forsee's, in the distance,
Her infant sent forth to the world and its snares.

Shall that face, a sweet well-spring of smiles, soon be sadden'd,

Those weak trembling hands be uplifted to sin?
Shall the heart, which scarce heaves on her bosom, be madden'd

By pain from without, or by passion within?

Is there none, then, to care for the desolate stranger,
Who goes, all unheeding, unarm'd, on his way?
No spirit of might to walk near him in danger,
And scatter the fiends that would make him prey?

Oh! yes, there is One, and besides Him no other
The Redeemer, the Ruler, whose throne is on high!
From the glories of heav'n He beholds the sad mother,
'Mid the songs of the angels he catches thy sigh.

Go, take thy sweet babe, and to Jesus confide him,
He has dwelt in our flesh, he can feel for our fears!
Take this lamb to the Shepherd, who safely will guide him
Through the desert of perils, the valley of tears!

—Sel.

AN ELOQUENT PASSAGE.

IT cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble cast up by the ocean of Eternity to float a moment upon its waves, and sink into nothingness. Else, why these high and glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts, forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and clouds come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off to leave us to muse on their loveliness? Why is it that stars which hold their festival around the midnight throne, are set above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And finally, why is it that the bright forms of human beauty are represented to our view and taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We were born for a higher destiny than earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful beings that pass before us like shadows, will stay forever in our presence.

TEN BUSINESS RULES.

TO SECURE SUCCESS IN LIFE.

MOTTO.—“Call on business men on business, during business hours; transact your business, and go about your business, that others may attend to their business.”

OFFICES, stores, and other places of business are established for business purposes. It cost time, care and money to maintain and conduct them. The results are in proportion to the talent, industry, and attention bestowed on the business. A concern which is run without business rules or order, will not only fail, but will spoil young employes, who become irregular, inattentive, slovenly, indolent, and shiftless.

1st. PROMPTNESS is indispensable. Each employe should always make it a rule to be “on time,” so as not to deprive his employer or others who may require attention of his presence and services when needed. If he be ten minutes behind time, it may cause the loss of time to ten others. Ten times ten minutes are a hundred!

2d. DILIGENCE, is not only a duty to employer, but it secures promotion and increased remuneration. One may not always be pushed with work, in which case he should push the work, and fill up his time as best he may.

3d. LOSING TIME.—One may be disposed to talk and gossip about matters not connected with the duties of the office, which not only consumes their own time, their employer's, but that also of listeners. How indignant would he feel if charged with robbing; and, as “time is money,” is he not robbing who wastes another's time? One has no right thus to “fool” away time for which he is paid to work or to attend to business.

4th. VIGILANCE.—To be vigilant in business, not slothful, is a Divine command. It is the duty of an employe to be watchful, wide-awake, and mindful of his employer's interests. Mere “killing time” till the clock strikes the hour to quit won't do; such indifference and neglect will neither secure more pay nor promotion.

5th. ECONOMY.—Each is in duty bound to see that nothing is wasted, paper, twine, tools, books, etc. He is also expected to exercise his mind as well as his hands in the interest of the business.

6th. A shirk or an eye servant watches the clock impatiently to have the time arrive for lunch or to quit, and is sure to be ready to drop any duty the moment the clock strikes. He is not so careful to be on hand in the morning. Then, he is “in the drag.” Such persons are seldom up with their work, and often fail to keep their promises. They are always unfortunate, and never rise in life.

7th. INTEGRITY PAYS.—Let it be understood that “this office aims to do an honest business.” Everything must be on the square. Should a customer over-pay when making a purchase, return him the amount. Should the cash receipts be over, or under, continue the investigation till the error is found.

8th. POLITENESS.—A rough, rude, uncouth, ill-tempered cur, boy, curmudgeon, or man, is a nuisance in any business concern, and the sooner he be set about something to which he is adapted, the better. He will drive away customers. One who stinks of whisky, beer, or tobacco is unfit to stand behind a counter and to wait on customers. One who is polite, patient, kindly, neat, tidy, talkative, honest, friendly, and capable of reading character, to know who waits to purchase, and who simply wants to look at the goods, is best adapted to the place, and will soon make his services indispensable.

9th. A GOOD PENMAN AND QUICK IN FIGURES.—To excel and turn off work well, and wite dispatch, one must write a handsome hand, and be able to compute figures rapidly; also to make change quickly and correctly. Bungling or delay in these is inexcusable.

10th. AIM HIGH.—Honorable aspiration in any callie is laudable. No useful work is menial. A true lady will grace the kitchen no less than the drawing-room. It is just as honorable to sweep and dust an office as it is to wear laces, or count coppers, or keep accounts. The boy who runs on errands, or carries parcels,

May, if he does his whole duty, work up through all the grades of porter, shipping-clerk, to book-keeper, cashier, partner, and principal. Many of our leading newspaper editors and publishers were once newsboys; and most of our leading merchants were once office-boys and clerks. To raise to the highest position one needs experience in all departments of the business. A sailor must study navigation and serve before the mast ere he is fit for captain or mate.

We need not moralize here, though we will suggest that the chances of the boy who abstains from the use of tobacco and alcoholic stimulants will always be the best. If he goes to Sunday-school, takes an active part in religious devotions, he will be better fortified against yielding to ordinary temptations, and will grow in grace, and with a knowledge of God and His righteousness, he will rise.

WRITTEN PRAYERS.—The venerable Thomas Williams, in conversation with a devoted ritualist, was discussing the subject of Written Prayers. This gentleman claimed that the whole Bible did not furnish one unwritten prayer. "No, sir, not a single one, sir." "Do you really think so?" "Yes sir, I defy you to point out a single scripture prayer that was not written. You can not do it." "Well, can I ask you a question?" "Certainly you can." "Tell me, then, who held the candle when Jonah read his prayers when in the whale's belly."

COURAGE IN THE RIGHT.

There may be some who'll gibe and sneer
At honest effort, but 'tis clear
That he who dares to do the right
Shall some day conquer in the fight,
If, heeding not the scoffer's cry,
He march right on e'er faithfully.

The grandest victories ever won
Are blessings sent for good deeds done;
And richer far than crowns of gold,
Or gems of fabulous wealth untold,
Is that bright crown of gratitude
The world gives to its brave and good.

Oh, toiler standing at the plow;
Oh, workman with the sweating brow,
Yours is the mission to fulfill
The carrying out of Heaven's will;
And yours the triumph of success,
If bravely on you ever press.

Take courage, then, and do your best:
There'll surely come a day of rest,
When sweetest flowers shall strew your way,
And chill December turn to May;
March with a hero's firmest tread—
"Be sure you're right, then go ahead!"

HISTORY OF THE OIMANITES.

AT different times in the history of our brotherhood, have brethren become dissatisfied with the church on some joint of doctrine or church government. And in refusing to hear the church in the settlement of the matter, become separated from the church, thus organizing a separate body. The above is true of the Oimanites, sometimes called New Dunkards.

Elder Peter Oiman lived in Carroll, County, Ind., and was a man of considerable talent and influence. About 1845 he began to express himself dissatisfied with some of the views and practices of the church. He took exceptions to asking the applicant questions in the water, also the restrictions on the apparel question. I believe he advocated the single mode of feet washing, also that the Lord's supper should be on the table during feet washing.

Among those who was led to join in advocating Oiman's views, was George Patten, a young minister of considerable talent, living in another locality. The condition of things in the locality of the church, where these views were advocated became serious; and as usual, the spirit of the reformed element painful. Repeated efforts were made to adjust the difficulty, but it finally resulted in the organization of the body known as the Oimanites.

They adopted congregationalism which speedily introduced new measures into their body. A man died in a few years after their organization and their prosperity seemed discouraging. In the course of time they introduced single backward immersion. They retain the table but have dismissed the meal. They practice the institution of the kiss at feet-washing. Practice open communion. Admit secrecy in all its forms. Do not prohibit legal swearing. In their apparel make no restrictions. Of late years they have been more successful in adding members. They report five or six hundred members, located mostly in White, Carroll and Clinton, Counties, Indiana. As a closing history of the Oimanites, I have recently learned, that they have affected a union with the Church of God, sometimes known as Winebibarians. Revisions and withdrawing elements from the different religious bodies, forming themselves in separate organizations are, and have been common. Usually, however, the bodies thus named, retain something near their original principles. But strange as it may seem, all the withdrawing elements from us as a church, have until recent date, all either withered, or been absorbed by other bodies.

THE WAY TO DO—IS TO DO.

NEVER, perhaps, has the world asked after deeds as now; never has it been so impatient of thought, so eager for fact. It cares little for the preliminary process by which a result has been reached; it is the result itself in which it is interested. Facts are not to be denied; therefore, facts must ever be more potent than words. What a man does, we accept as proof positive; what he says, we fling to the winds when it contradicts the deed itself. A man talks of a new scheme or a new invention, and we laugh at him; he accomplishes it and we honor him. What, therefore, the present age demands is doers, not dreamers. To insure success in almost any undertaking implies the harness, the reins, and the workshop. A man who is anxious to achieve must consent to lose himself for a while, if need be; he must be satisfied if he is learning how; but few are willing to put forth this effort which lies at the foundation of all true success. We are such an impatient people that each in turn tries to jump the stream by which a careful knowledge is attained; If we get across, no matter how, that is all we ask for, and then we begin to scramble up the steep and slippery banks on the opposite shore. We console ourselves by saying, "Who knows how we got over? we're here in the ranks, that's enough!" But the climbing soon shows the difference, and who have made suitable preparation for the journey. The world wants workers, but it wants skilled work; if we can only meet this demand there is enough for us to do; if we can not, no one cares to hear the reasons why. To dream of success and to put forth the effort which secures success are altogether different affairs; and so, while the requirement was never so great as now for those who have ability to do and achieve, the world is full of dreamers, talkers, praters; people who imagine they know all things because they can talk about a few, and who really know nothing. The great demand is, "Show us the proof! can you do this thing of which you prate? then we want you; if not, go!" At one time, when Sparta was in distress, envoys were sent from the surrounding states to assure her of their willingness to render the needed assistance. One rose and made an elaborate address, in which he detailed the generous liberality of his country, and specified what service she would render her sister state. As he seated himself, another rose and remarked quietly, "What this man has said, I will do." Workers are apt to be reticent. It is the thought, then the action; their

The point which you ought to think of is not whether people are agreed or disagreed to believe in God, but whether or not he is worthy of our allegiance.

THE NEW TESTAMENT.

We love the book of Matthew,
Of Mark, and Luke, and John;
The life of God our Saviour
Is what they dwell upon:
The Acts, and then the Romans,
Two Corinthians you see;
Galatians, and Ephesians,
Bring Christ to you and me.

Philippians and Collossians,
Are next in order here,
Thessalonians and Timothy
In twain they both appear:
Then Titus and Philemon,
And Hebrews, rich in truth.
With James, and two of Peter,
Instructs all age and youth.

John writes to little children
And gives epistles three,
While Jude discourses plainly
Of what we all should be:
The last is Revelations,
To all the nations sent;
And thus we have completed
The whole New Testament.

ASTONISHING ACCURACY OF THE BIBLE.

AN astonishing feature of the word of God is, that not withstanding the time at which its compositions were written, and the multitudes of the topics to which it alludes, there is not one physical error—not one assertion or allusion disproved by the progress of modern science. None of those mistakes which the science of each succeeding age discovered in the books of the preceding; above all, none of those absurdities which modern astronomy indicates in such great numbers in the writings of the ancients—in their sacred codes, in their philosophy, and even in the finest pages of the fathers of the church—not one of these errors is to be found in any of our sacred books. Nothing there will ever contradict that which after so many ages the investigations of the learned world have been able to reveal to us on the heavens.

Persue with care our Scriptures from one end to the other, to find there such spots; and whilst applying yourselves to this examination, remember that it is a book that speaks of everything, which describes nature, which recites creation, which tells us of the water, of the atmosphere, of the mountains, of the animals, and of the plants. It is a book that teaches us the first revolutions of the world, and which also fortells its last. It recounts them in the circumstantial language of history, it extols them in the sublimest strains of poetry, and it chants them in the chasms of glowing song. It is a book which is full of Oriental rapture, elevation variety, and boldness. It is a book which speaks of the heavenly and invisible world, whilst it speaks of the earth and things visible. It is a book which nearly fifty writers of every degree of cultivation, of every taste, of every condition, and living through the course of fifteen hundred years, have concurred to make. It is a book which was written in the center of Asia, in the sands of Arabia, and in the deserts of Judea; in the court of the temple of the Jews, in the music schools of the prophets of Bethel and Jericho, in the sumptuous palaces of Babylon, and on the idolatrous banks of the Chebar; and finally, in the center of the western civilization, in the midst of the Jews and of their ignorance, in the midst of Polytheism and its idols, as also in the bosom of pantheism and its sad philosophy. It is a book whose first writer has been a pupil of the magicians of Egypt, in whose opinion the sun, the stars and the elements, were endowed with intelligence, re-acted on the elements, and governed the world by a perpetual alluvium. It is a book whose first writer preceded by more

For an nine hundred years the most ancient philosophers of ancient Greece and Asia—the Pythagorases, and the Zalcuses, the Xenophons, and the Confuciuses. It is a book which carried its narrations even to the hierarchies of angels; even to the most distant epoch of the future, and the glorious scenes of the last days. Well search among its fifty volumes, search among its sixty six books, its 189 chapters, and 31, 173 verses, search only for one of those thousand errors which the ancients and the moderns committed when they spoke of the heavens or of the earth—of their revolutions, of the elements; search but you will find none.

EXAGGERATION.

WE have heard a story of an old brother who had such an extravagant way of speaking that uncharitable people said he was an habitual liar. His reputation was such in his community that he was an injury to the church, and he was arraigned with a view to being excommunicated, in order that the church might be rid of the reproach which his connection with it had brought upon it. When arraigned he made a public confession of his guilt, and proceeding to say more denunciatory things of himself than any of his brethren felt, or were inclined to say against him. Said he, "Brethren, I know my sin, and I confess it; and, brethren, it gives me much more trouble than it does you. To tell you the truth, brethren, I have shed an ocean of tears over it."

Indeed there is scarcely a more common fault than this. Instead of confining one's statements to the strict bound and measure of the truth, some men color, stretch, add to, and magnify, until nothing they say is taken without many "grains of allowance." The fault may arise from a disregard to truth, when it is an intentional habit of lying. Or it may arise from a careless habit of loving to make things appear grandly, which do not deserve the measure of importance which their extravagant speech indicates. Life is as a general thing, prosy and monotonous, bereft of romance and stirring incidents which find such a congenial home in their fanciful brains, and they atone for this lack by "piling on the agony." Or it may arise from an undue desire for self-promotion, which leads the individual to magnify everything in any wise calculated to enhance his own importance, which grows into a habit, and is afterwards transferred to things not personal to himself. For instance, a pastor wishes to change his location; he visits a church, and they ask him if his old charge is willing to give him up. "Oh!" says he, "they are very far from it, I mentioned a few weeks ago in my pulpit that I should change my field of labor, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the house." Well, they did regret to lose the brother, but old sister Jones was the only one that made any pretense of crying, and it seemed hard work for her. Why, then, did he say there was scarcely a dry eye in the house? And if his statement ever gets back to his old charge, the uncharitable ones will immediately say the parson told a lie. But tell a downright lie the parson would not for his right arm.

The story of the little boy who ran breathless to the house and told his father that the woods was full of wild turkeys, but who afterwards was willing to swear that he did hear something gobble, is an apt hyperbole of the conversation of many people, both in and out of the church. Reader, are you guilty of exaggeration? If so, it is shameful, sinful, and oftentimes mischievous. Quit it. Speak the truth and nothing but the truth. "Sound speech," said Paul to Timothy, "that can not be condemned, that he is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you." "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able to bridle his whole body."

The tree does not withdraw its protecting shade from the man that hews it down.

PARENTAL SELF-CONTROL.

SELF-CONTROL is one of the first and most useful lessons for the child to learn, and one requiring as much wisdom and patience on the part of the parent and teacher to impart as any other. Indeed, parents and teachers, unfortunately, often find it difficult to practice the virtue they seek to inculcate in the little folks. Those who have not been trained to self-control are not likely to train their own children in that virtue. A story is told of a very profane man whose boy had learned to swear. But the father knew it was a bad and wicked habit, and wished to break his son of it, though he continued to set the example. He took the boy out to a thicket, where he could get plenty of sticks to whip the bad habit out of him. As it happened, the thicket was only a hundred yards from the houses of several of the neighbors, who could hear the blows and hear the father swear at his boy for swearing, and then whip some more and stop and swear again to impress the boy with the turpitude of his misdoings. This was about as ridiculous as was the noisy speech of the man at the peace society's meeting, in which he stated that he was for peace, and he "was determined to have peace if he had to fight for it."

Self-control, however, does not relate merely to the curbing of the passion of anger. One may be sensitive as to place, position, preferment, praise, property. To subject one's pride or pleasure of another, in a conciliatory and kindly spirit, may be, in some, so easy and natural as not to rise to the dignity of a Christian grace; but in the average of us, such self-abnegation as would lead us to so high a virtue might well be reckoned as a Christian grace. The more effort one has to make to subdue and rectify natural infelicities of disposition, the higher the grade of virtue should be esteemed. If one rises from ignorance, poverty, and other unfavorable associations to education, wisdom, wealth, and honor, the world accords to him special respect for the marvel of successful effort exhibited.

UPS AND DOWNS.

THE world is full of ups and downs. All around us are men climbing up to be tumbled down, or creeping down to be lifted up. Before destruction is pride; before honor is humility. Satan lifts men up, that he may hurl them down. God casts them down, that he may afterwards lift them up. When men have climbed to the highest point, they have nothing to do but to come down. When they have gone to the lowest depths, then, if they move at all, they must rise.

Men seek honor through pride. God gives them shame, to teach them humility. When they learn to choose His way, and receive what He appoints, their short humiliation is succeeded by enduring exaltation. Satan's road is up, and then down. The Lord's path leads down, and then up. Men climb the mountains of pride, and plunge hence headlong into horrible pits of darkness and despair. God takes men out of the horrible pit and the miry clay, and sets their feet upon a rock, and establishes their goings.

David walked in the valley, and feared no evil, for the Good Shepherd was with him. He who stands on the pinnacle of the temple is quite likely to have Satan for company; and his only object in taking Christ up there was to coax him to cast himself down. Learn to be meek and lowly in heart. God hath respect to the humble but he knoweth the proud afar off. Beware of climbing with Satan, lest you fall as he fell,—like lightning from heaven.

It is said that the following remedy for ear-ache has never been known to fail! Take a bit of cotton batting, put upon it a pinch of black pepper, gather it up and tie it, dip in sweet oil, and insert in the ear. Put a flannel bandage over the head to keep it warm. This will give immediate relief.

BEYOND.

Beyond the mountains and the main
Lie lands where roses bloom again,
All glorified;
The sweet, fair roses, white and red,
That in love's bosom found their bed,
And then—have died.

Beyond the valley and the stream
Lie lands where youth's immortal dream
Waits later age;
Therein love lingers, looks, and longs,
And sings the old familiar songs
On life's worn page.

Beyond! beyond! oh, lands of love!
If close at hand your confines prove
Or far away,
Oh, lands beloved! I grow more fond
Of happy hopes that lie beyond
Life's little day.

—Sel.

DRESS PLAINLY.

SOME one has given the following reasons why people should dress plainly on Sunday. These reasons are as valid any other day in the week: It would lessen the burden of many who now find it hard to maintain their place in society. It would lessen the force of temptations which often lead men to barter honesty and honor for display. If there was less strife in dress at church, people in moderate circumstances would be more inclined to attend. Universal moderation in dress at church would improve the worship by the removal of many wandering thoughts. It would enable all classes of people to attend church in unfavorable weather. It would lessen on the part of the rich, the temptation to vanity. It would lessen, on the part of the poor, the temptation to be envious and malicious. It would save valuable time on the Sabbath. It would relieve our means from a serious pressure, and thus enable us to do more for good enterprises.—Mothers' Magazine.

BLESSINGS IN DISGUISE.

THE trials of life which seem greater than we can bear are often only "blessings in disguise." May good come out of evil? In early Christian times the question was asked, "Can any good come out of Nazareth?" We, short-sighted mortals, often deplore conditions which, if rightly used, would tend to our good. We ask that we may escape cares, trials, responsibilities, and even work! Nevertheless, all these things are blessed to our use. And so is adversity, when we have enough grace to accept the situation meekly. "To whom much is given, much is required." Have you great abilities? rare gifts? great strength? great riches? and will you not exercise them in the interest of the less fortunate and the poor? Curses will come on you and on your to the seventh generation! You must use your talents, strength, abilities, riches, or they will corrode and bring evil on their owner.

Welcome the duties of life, the cares of life, the struggles of life, and even the trials of life. They are for your good. Have you lost property, position, influence, fame? It should tend to wean you from life's vanities, and reconcile you to the life to come. Has death separated you from loved ones? Accept the lot, and realize that they have simply "gone before"—that you will meet again. Are you on the brink of another world, just ready to let go of this? Did not He teach you the way? and can you not say, "Thy will be done?" How beautiful is Faith! and oh, how comforting!

No wise man would seek to be exempted from the healthy discipline of trouble, any more than an intelligent child would wish to be excused from school, and be allowed to play all day and every day in the meadows. No: we are not butterflies that flit from flower to flower; life is real, life is earnest, and the tonic of sorrow braces and strengthens us to make it so.—Spurgeon.
